DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The single, detached, clapboard residence is a three story, three bay, flat roofed structure with an extended first story and an open gallery supported by columns. The flat roofed open gallery has a plain, boxed cornice which blends in design with the stark white supporting columns and wooden railing between.

The main entrance has a blind transom and wooden lugsill. The windows at the left are equal in height to the entrance and are double hung, 4/6 design with lugsill and shutters. The window to the right is a four sash with mullion construction, framed by a continuous lintel and sill with moulded side surrounds and a segmental arch above the lintel.

The second and third story windows all have the same double-hung, 4/4 shuttered and lugsill construction. The boxed cornice is decorated with brackets, and the frieze with dentils.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The house resembles the three story, three bay, attached, Victorian rowhouse design frequently used during that time period. The variation in design is seen in the extended first story with gallery and its single detached status.

This is one of the oldest homes in Waverly and was probably used as a summer residence. It is located with the oldest complete block of homes in the Waverly area.
